About Us

Building Markets unleashes the transformational power of small businesses to address pressing social challenges by driving job creation and inclusive growth.

Global challenges we face today—poverty, inequality, climate change, environmental degradation, and injustice—cannot be solved without the involvement of the private sector. Solutions will require transformation in the form of new business models, new innovation, and new technology. This opens up exciting opportunities for small businesses around the world, which represent 90% of businesses and more than 50% of employment worldwide, to play an important role in creating positive social impact by driving job creation and inclusive growth, particularly for the economically vulnerable.

Building Markets develops trusted relationships with entrepreneurs and uses a data-driven approach to strengthen the capacity of small businesses to contribute to local marketplaces through end-to-end services. Our primary model has three pillars:

- FIND. We build better market information by verifying small businesses through in-depth surveys and publishing searchable business profiles and research reports.
- BUILD. We enhance the commercial and digital capacity of small businesses through training and advisory services, helping them compete in a global marketplace.
- CONNECT. We improve market efficiency through tender distribution services, matchmaking services, and events that enable small businesses to access new buyers, customers, and capital.

Utilizing this model in Türkiye since 2018, Building Markets provides a suite of services that support refugee and host community businesses. To date, we have created a Business Directory of +2,500 SMEs, distributed and published +3,700 opportunities on our Tenders Directory, and trained or mentored 940 SMEs. Market research products published by Building Markets create an evidence base to better understand the economic contributions of refugees, and identify opportunities to promote social cohesion through economic development in Türkiye. Businesses participating in Building Markets activities have won over US $28 million in new business opportunities, which contributes to household incomes and has helped to create or maintain over 3,000 full-time equivalent jobs across Türkiye.

Background

With the largest refugee population in the world, Türkiye is faced with the challenge of integrating 3.6 million Syrian newcomers into both its society and economy. The impact of the COVID-19 pandemic and resulting economic slowdown have compounded this challenge. It is currently estimated that more than 2 million Syrians in Türkiye are of working age, and 90% of the one million that are employed are working in the informal economy.¹² Ensuring refugees and other vulnerable populations can access reliable, formal employment gives them a path to self-reliance. Once integrated into the labor force, they can leverage their skills and capabilities, earn income, and provide for themselves and their families.

The negative economic impact of COVID-19 is expected to continue to shrink GDP, and Syrian SMEs will likely be disproportionately affected. This endangers the livelihoods of Syrian business owners, their employees, and their families. In an economy with high levels of unemployment (13.9% as of April 2021), particularly among young people (25.6% as of April 2021),³ social tensions between host communities and refugees can quickly escalate. In a difficult labor market, portions of the Turkish population feel that Syrians are taking jobs away from Turkish people, although there is no evidence supporting this claim. On the contrary, supporting refugee-owned businesses fills a gap in access to formal employment and reduces the informality of the broader Turkish labor market, thereby aligning with Turkish government goals.

The key to creating jobs and sustaining livelihoods in Türkiye is the country's micro, small, and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), including those owned and managed by refugees. Türkiye offers ample opportunity for business development, as demonstrated by the thousands of companies that Syrian refugees have started in the last decade. Data collected by Building Markets indicates that in 2017 alone, Syrians invested more than $330 million USD in capital into more than 6,000 new enterprises in the country. On average, these businesses were employing 10 people and reported that most of their employees were previously working in the informal sector, often in illegal, low-wage, and hazardous conditions.⁴

Limited visibility, access to relevant training, information, and capital, as well as partnerships that enable businesses to reach different stages in their lifecycle, hinder the growth, employment potential, and sustainability of Syrian-owned SMEs in Türkiye. For example, business support programs are largely inaccessible to Syrians due to cost, language, or lack of context in addressing challenges specific to refugee-owned firms. Programs also miss the opportunity to promote relationships between refugees and Turkish SMEs, which is crucial to integration, harmonization, and addressing unemployment and informal labor, and the overall growth of Türkiye's private sector. Additionally, while buyers and investors may wish to do business with Syrian-owned enterprises, they report an inability to identify qualified companies, as well as communication difficulties due to the language barrier.

The Building Markets Sustainable Marketplace project works to equip Syrian and refugee-owned SMEs in Türkiye with the knowledge, skills, and relationships they need to access new opportunities, grow and sustain their businesses, and create jobs. There is a great deal of room to scale these outcomes in a way that is meaningful for both refugee and host communities. This includes enabling mutually beneficial business partnerships between Turkish and Syrian entrepreneurs where there is complementary expertise. Turkish businesses sometimes reject the added value of Syrian SME partners, however, they often have access to export markets in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region and can more effectively communicate with potential buyers. In addition, local and international NGOs and companies interested in doing business with refugee-led companies often do not possess the relationships or data to include them in their local procurement. In addition to its verification, training, matchmaking, and tender distribution services, Building Markets actively leverages its connections, and deep understanding of and access to the local market to conduct research on Syrian and refugee-owned businesses and their contribution to the Turkish economy.
